

When I Worship You

Father, when I worship You, I simply, honestly acknowledge Your reality.

You are, and

You are who You say You are.

When I worship You, I acknowledge

what You have done and what You are doing.

Worship doesn't require advanced intelligence or complex reasoning.

When I worship, I am responding in simple faith

to You and to the truth about You:

You are the Creator.

All that is flows from You.

I flow from You, my Father.

You are eternal.

You envelop all time, all the past, present, and future.

You are the First and Last, the Beginning and the End and everything in-between.

You are All-in-all.

You are holy.

You are pure, and

You are transcendent.

You are separate, high above everything and everyone else.

You are our Redeemer,

our Savior,

our Sacrifice.

Father, when I worship You,

I am drawn deeper and deeper into Your magnificence.

When I focus on You,

I think and talk less about myself and more about You.

And Father, worship is contagious.

As we worship, we draw each other into that worship.

Worship will crescendo until one day it envelops all creation (Revelation 5:8-14).
