

Easter Is the Story of a King

(Long Version)

Easter is the story of a King.
But this King did not look or act like any other king.

Most kings dress in royal robes, rich and luxurious,
intentionally different than the daily dress of their people.
This King took off His heavenly robes and dressed Himself in our flesh and blood.
He put on the simple garments of the poor
so that He could feel exactly how they feel.

Most kings live in a palace.
This King had no home.

Most kings sit on a throne.
They raise themselves above everyone else.
This King was great and glorious and highly exalted,
but He humbled Himself.
He laid aside all His magnificence
so that He could know His people and live among them and talk to them face to face.

Most kings grab wealth and power.
This King was Lord of all but gladly released everything He owned so He could embrace us.

When people saw how great and kind this wonderful King truly was,
they loved Him and joyfully praised Him and asked Him to be their King.
