

God's truth is so marvelous that when we begin to taste it, we tend to assume that we grasp it all perfectly. We easily lose sight of our own ignorance and limited understanding. The truth about the infinite, eternal God is so much broader and deeper and grander than we can conceive. I suspect that God's people together come closer to the whole truth than any of us individually. So cling to God's truth, but stay humble about your own understanding.
